CALL FOR PAPERS

JOURNAL OF LANGUAGE, CULTURE, AND RELIGION is a new peer-reviewed journal devoted to advancing research on language and culture from a broad range of academic disciplines including, but not limited to, linguistics, sociolinguistics, anthropology, semantics and pragmatics, translation and discourse, literacy, language learning, Scripture engagement, field methodology, ethnomusicology, world arts, and missiology.

SCOPE

Articles should advance theory on language or culture, or report on field work data that has significant implications for language or culture. An array of international contributors is especially desired.

The journal also welcomes book reviews of 1,200 words or less.

SUBMISSIONS

Articles and book reviews should be e-mailed to the Managing Editor.

Article submissions must:

- Follow the JLCR style guide, online at www.diu.edu/JLCR.
- Include an abstract of no more than 200 words.
- Use Unicode fonts exclusively.

To request a book for review:

- Contact the publisher's media department directly; inform them you will submit a review to JLCR for our consideration.
- Or, e-mail the Managing Editor to request that the book be ordered for you. Whether a book will be sent is at the discretion of the publisher.

The first issue will appear in Spring or Summer 2020. We invite you to contribute to JLCR as part of the ongoing global effort to better understand language and culture.

PUBLISHERS

 Publishers who wish for us to find reviewers for their books are welcome to mail review copies to:
